STARTING IN STALLS STIRS ADMIRATION

By J. W. MARCHBANK

Evelyn Laye, the famous actress, who was a guest of the management at Tanforan on one of the concluding days of the fall meeting, is a typical Englishwoman. By that I mean she is tremendously interested in racing and everything that makes it the great sport it is, not only in the land of its origin, England, but in many other countries.

One of the first questions of the extremely alert actress as a field approached the post for a race at six furlongs was the natural one:

"What's that funny little box over there?"

The mechanical contraption, called a stall starting gate, had caught the eye of Miss Laye and as the mechanism is unknown in her own country she wanted to learn all about it. When the explanation was given that each horse had a stall all to itself, protecting it from injury from his excitable fellow starters, as well as insuring all the animals to be in alignment for the beginning of the race, she exclaimed:

"Why, that's just what we should have at home; you know they have a fearful time over there getting the horses in line."

Prior to the introduction of the stalls the starting was done, as you undoubtedly recall, from what was known as the barrier, one or more ribbons across the course, which were sprung by the man on the starter's stand when that official's eagle eye told him the horses were aligned sufficiently for the start or long journey of the thoroughbreds turned over to him. The Australian starting gate, as the barrier was called, was brought over to San Francisco from the southern hemisphere by an inventive genius by the name of Lopez and quickly supplanted the still older scheme of starting with the flag, just as the flag had taken the place of the drum in earlier times. England, it is needless to say, is still employing the Australian gate.

The stall gate is by no means perfect, but until something better is suggested probably will be continued in use throughout the country and up in Canada. It was in British Columbia, by the way, that the barrier was removed from the stall contrivance and a bell substituted for the springing of the ribbons as a signal for the start. Wesley ("Quarter Horse") Neary is rightfully given credit for that change.

FATALITY DUE TO CARELESSNESS IS ALLEGATION

Aged Daly City Resident
Struck Down By High
Speed Motorist

Excessive speed and poor street lighting were a combination alleged to be responsible for possibly fatal injury to a Daly City resident, Saturday evening last.

While crossing Mission street at the intersection of Parkview avenue at about 9:30 that evening Paul F. Schlegel of 56 Alp avenue was struck down and probably fatally hurt. The victim was enroute to his home when injured.

The driver of the machine which struck Schlegel was L. E. Langdon, an employee of the City Sandwich Shop in San Francisco. Miss Selma Walters of Church street, San Francisco, was a passenger in Langdon's car. She stated her opinion was that the accident was due to poor street lighting, rather than that the car was being driven at great speed.

Langdon and his passenger were taken to the local police headquarters and questioned. They were later released on their own recognizance.

Schlegel was unconscious when taken to the Villa Sanatorium immediately following the accident.

The victim passed away, Wednesday afternoon at 1:45 o'clock, without having regained consciousness.

The remains were removed to the W. C. Lasswell mortuary establishment awaiting funeral arrangements.

WILL ORGANIZE YOUNG DEMOCRATS IN THIS COUNTY

The special speaker at the regular monthly meeting of the Women's Democratic Club of San Mateo County, held in Burlingame, of last week, at the home of the Misses Daly, was William B. Salesman, chairman of the state finance committee, whose subject was the plan of organization of the Young Democrats in this state.

The object of this special occasion was to learn something of the possibilities of co-ordination and co-operation between these two organizations in the common motive—the re-election of President Roosevelt in 1936.

All present considered the meeting most helpful and instructive, evidencing their enthusiastic support of their leader and organizer, Mrs. Neenah Lesseman.

After an expression of appreciation and thanks extended to Mr. Salesman, on behalf of the Women's organization by Mrs. Lesseman, refreshments were served by the hostesses of the afternoon, the Misses Daly.

President Is Now a Fire Laddie

President Roosevelt is a full fledged fireman, for he received a gold badge signifying his membership in the Eagle engine company of his home town, Hyde Park, N. Y. And with it went a red helmet, which the President is shown wearing as he accepts the medal from Donald Todd, president of the fire company.

ONLY ROOSEVELT CAN LEAD PEOPLE RIGHT

By J. W. MARCHBANK
Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work

Complacency is not a commendable quality for that period. It is quality in the mental make up of an individual and neither is it to be desired in that composite, known as the will of the people. Once we have become satisfied with our progress, however great it may appear, we are in danger of retrogression. Evolution must go right on in government affairs as it does in the purely public world.

Right now there is a spirit abroad in the land that must be combated with all our might. It may be expressed bluntly in this way: President Roosevelt has shown the way to get out of the slough of the depression, we're out of it (as a matter of fact, we're not), so let's throw him out. To which we again reply: "Give the President another four years to finish his great job."

Not so long ago Ruth Finney, the brilliant correspondent of the San Francisco News at Washington, made a keen analysis of the present situation. She frankly declares that the Roosevelt administration is up against its most baffling problem in the fact that the depression seems to be over for half the country and not for the other half. As Miss Finney points out, when business indices were low, the administration expected improvement in business would end unemployment. Indices have climbed almost to normal but the number of unemployed is still about 10,000,000. So it looks as though the wage earning half of the population is still feeling hard times.

A few figures. Industrial production is about 90 per cent of the 1923-25 average, while only 82 per cent as many persons are employed and payrolls are only about three-fourths of

The chief executive of the nation is fighting to maintain civilization as we have known it for a long time; we should get that nation clearly in our heads. But in keeping up our standards of liberty for the individual we must acknowledge we also have a social duty to perform; the old philosophy of every man for himself, the devil take the hind most, is gone forever.

As has been pointed out with the truth in many enlightened quarters the need for a sense of community responsibility was never so great as it is today. Every man for himself, certainly, but he must not be allowed to injure his fellows while getting what he wants—such is the essence of the Roosevelt scheme of things.

Can you beat it? I think not. A disposition on the part of people to hush themselves to sleep with the specious idea that everything is all right, that things have quieted down, that old abuses can go right on, and that there is nothing more to worry about can wreck civilization. We must wake up.

RESOLUTION OF MERCHANTS FOR STAY OF TIME

The following is a copy of a petition presented to the City Council at its last session:

To the Honorable,
The City Council Of
The City of Daly City,
Daly City, California.

"Whereas, your Honorable Board is presently contemplating the advisability of enacting an ordinance which by its terms would absolutely prohibit the sale of fireworks within the confines of the City of Daly City, and

"Whereas the sale of fireworks in the City of Daly City during the period of the Fourth of July Celebration is productive of the expenditure of many thousands of dollars annually with merchants of our city, which money is derived principally from communities other than our own, and

"Whereas, the profit derived from the sale of fireworks by our merchants represents in many instances, the difference between success and failure for the year, and

STATE RULES AGAINST CHECKS FOR AUTO FEES

California's motorists will have to use something besides personal checks in paying for their motor vehicle registrations and vehicle license fees hereafter.

Department of Motor Vehicles announces that cash, postoffice money orders, cashier's checks or express money orders only will be accepted at all offices for registration number plates or any other department transaction.

"The ruling is one of economy and efficiency," says J. C. Toomey, chief of division of accounting for the department. "Annual efforts of the division in running down bad checks have worked a great handicap on the efficiency of the department and the cost in postage has become exorbitant. Although it is realized the ruling will be a hardship for many, California's taxpayers as a whole will benefit by the economy."

According to Toomey, it has often cost taxpayers more than $20 to send a California Highway Patrol officer to collect a $3 fee paid by bad check.

AIR BASE CONTRIBUTION STIRS BELATED PROTEST OF FERRELL AFTER TAX IS LEVIED IN COUNTY

Highlights of the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors meeting Monday of this week were:

(1) Scoring of District Attorney Gilbert Ferrell by Supervisor Al Witt, Daly City, because the latter challenges the legality of the Sunnyvale Air Base contribution of $10,000 at this late date.

(2) Appointment by the Board of Hugh Mullin Jr., young San Mateo attorney, to succeed Richard O'Farrell as justice of the peace in the Second Township. O'Farrell was killed two weeks ago in an auto collision.

Supervisor Witt Scores Dis- trict Attorney Ferrell For Not Asking Opinion From Attorney General Months Ago To Guide Board.

District Attorney Ferrell drew the fire of Supervisor Witt, dynamic leader of the board, when he announced through the press last week that he intended asking the attorney general's office for an opinion as to the legality of the county's contribution toward the cost of the Sunnyvale air base.

"This is a fine time for the district attorney to suddenly become concerned about the legality of the transaction," Supervisor Witt told the board, "after he allowed us to levy a one cent tax against the taxpayers to make good our Sunnyvale obligation."

Daniel Sullivan, Ferrell's chief deputy, answered Witt by saying that a "group of taxpayers" were forcing Ferrell to seek the opinion now.

"I don't believe it," shot back Supervisor Witt, "this about face emanates in the county controller's office. Mr. Edward Stack sat here with this Board of Supervisors and never uttered a word against the meeting of the obligation. He knew and allowed us to set up the tax levy of one cent in our budget. Now he refuses to pay the obligation and Mr. Ferrell comes in at this late date and wants an opinion from the attorney general on the legality of the question."

"If we have acted illegally then I shall be the first one to rescind my vote, but why did District Attorney Ferrell wait until this late date to decide that an opinion from the attorney general's office is necessary?"

Deputy Sullivan was frustrated and unable to answer for his chief. Ferrell was not present at the board meeting.

Supervisor John Poole, Redwood City, said some of the "biggest taxpayers" in San Mateo County were insisting that San Mateo pay the pledge, which, he said, was made to the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce in the form of a "gentleman's agreement."

The appointment of Hugh Mullin Jr. to the justice post has met with considerable approval throughout the county.

Mullin is a graduate of Santa Clara University and a Law School graduate.

NORTH END AIDS RED CROSS HERE IN CAMPAIGNING

Public Responding Readily
To Appeal For Funds
To Worthy Cause

Red Cross workers in their canvass of Daly City, Bayshore City and Brisbane were meeting with good response during the annual Red Cross Roll Call drive, which comes to a close on Thanksgiving Day.

Miss Helen Chesebrough, county chairman of the drive, was particularly enthusiastic over reports to local headquarters concerning the movement.

Mrs. William Jonas is chairman in Brisbane, Mrs. M. P. Brown in Colma and Mrs. H. E. Fellows in Daly City. At Lawndale the drive is being handled by Mrs. E. A. Weisenberger.

"The north end of the county is certainly showing good response to our drive," said Miss Chesebrough.

"We feel that we'll go over the top with our campaign if the First Township has anything to do with it."

This week proclamations by President Franklin Roosevelt and Governor Frank F. Merriam urged support with contributions.

ENGINEER WILL BUY EQUIPMENT FOR ROAD WORK

Board Authorizes Marshall
To Spend $17,000 For Purchase Of Trucks
For County.

The Board of Supervisors, at Monday's session, ordered County Engineer Marshall to acquire additional trucks for his department for use on WPA projects.

In urging concurrence in his recommendation Marshall said the possession of this equipment is an important item of credit in securing federal funds to aid these projects. He stated money for the purpose would be expended from state gasoline funds and not from direct taxes.

Ten thousand dollars of the fund will be used for purchase of second hand trucks in good mechanical condition. Marshall said, and the balance of $7000 will be used to provide seven new 1½-yard dump trucks. The cost of these will be partly offset by turning in four old trucks.

This purchase will give the county fourteen good trucks, Marshall said, and will permit the carrying on of an extensive WPA program.

Supervisor Albert Witt Jr., of Daly City said he approved the engineer's suggestion as "good business," and made the motion authorizing the purchasing agent to acquire the equipment.

FINAL WEEK FOR TEST OF DAIRY COWS

The State Department of Agriculture will have its veterinarians in San Mateo County during the week to complete the testing of all cattle for tuberculosis. Cow owners whose animals have not been tested and whose names are not on file with the state veterinarians should at once notify either the County Department of Public Health and Welfare, Redwood City or Supervising Veterinarian Dr. E. M. Keef, 619 Laurel avenue, San Mateo.

Already 695 cattle have been tested in San Mateo County, which is about one-half the cow population of the county, and a most favorable report of less than 1 per cent reactors to the T. B. test have been found. If the percentage of reacting animals remains low San Mateo County will become what is known as a modified accredited county and so recognized by the federal and state authorities. This will mean much to the owners of dairy cattle having animals to sell to outside buyers of dairy stock. This county is already a restricted area in T. B. eradication program and no case animals be brought into San Mateo County that have not been tested.

The T. B. tests are made once a year without cost by the state veterinarians and all owners having cows that are due for a test should make proper arrangements this week.

WEEKLY BULLETIN

By Chief A. P. Chesney

It was once said: "The only persons who can prevent loss by fire are the owners or occupants of the premises; upon them rests the responsibility for heavy loss in nearly every fire."

This is the fire problem in a nut shell. It is up to the owners and occupants, who neglect the fire danger.

The great danger is the old buildings. The way to remove the danger is to make the present buildings safe. Do not run the risk of financial ruin by a conflagration in this city.

Do not be responsible for a national panic caused by a big fire in this city. Don't depend upon insurance; it never pays for loss of business.

Remember the fire department must have your assistance to fight a fire.

Don't ask firemen to risk their lives in dangerous buildings.

You can co-operate with the fire department by making your building safe against fire. You can prevent fire in your building by removing the causes of fire.

A large number of grown-ups, as well as students, attended this fine performance.

AN INTERESTING TALK BY CHINESE

Jefferson Union High School P. T. A. Hears Of Home Life In The Orient.

The regular meeting of the Jefferson Union High School P. T. A. was held in the Little Theater, Tuesday evening of this week, and was observed, as Annual Fathers Night.

The High School Chorus, under the direction of Professor Stevens, gave three entertaining numbers to open the program. After a short business session, Dean Morris of San Mateo Junior College spoke interestingly on "Equipping the Students for the Future."

The speaker brought with him a Chinese student who has been in America only a short time. This student gave a short sketch of his home life in the Orient and of the life of his family. He made interesting comparisons of conditions as he found them here and as they exist there. His pictures were greatly enjoyed.

Refreshments were served after the meeting. We appreciate the good attendance of fathers and trust they will come again.

DOWN

AGAIN—Electric RATES DROP

Down they go! Beginning with your January bills electric rates will be reduced for home use, for commercial lighting and large industrial power, according to the amount of electricity used.

Down goes the cost of electric cooking and water heating, lighting, for washing machines and ironers, and for all the smaller uses, from the electric clocks to the doorbell transformers, to the percolator and toaster that get the daily breakfast. Electricity becomes cheaper, too, to every merchant, large or small, and in all office buildings for commercial lighting of windows, stores, counters, signs, etc.

It is important news and good news that this reduction will save Pacific Gas and Electric Company customers nearly $4,000,000 a year. It is unusual news in these days when general living costs are pushing higher and higher. Think of it! As shown in the chart above, the Cost of Living is UP 33.3% above the pre-war level. The cost of electricity with the new low rates is 35.4% below that level—and that means 68.7% below today's cost of living.

Establishing a record unmatched by any other item in the cost of living, the cost of electricity has steadily gone down since 1928. Successive rate reductions since that year show an accumulated total of $54,621,000—equivalent to an annual saving to customers of over $6,800,000.

Keen Imagination Sure Check on Unkind Acts

A keen imagination is the surest check upon all unkind conduct. Happily, it is the very rare exception when anyone intends to be unkind. Most persons, however culpable, would indignantly deny the imputation. It is usually because they fail to realize the suffering they inflict; they are deficient in that power which depicts the pain of another to their own sensibilities.

There are many hearts now hard and callous that might be rendered tender and pitiful could their imaginative faculty be so developed as to make them conscious of the distress they carelessly produce.

SYNOPSIS

As Alan Garth, prospector, is preparing to leave for his mining claim in the Far North, a plane lands at the airways emergency station. In it are Burton Ramill, millionaire mining magnate; his daughter, Lilith; and Vivian Huxby, pilot and mining engineer. Believing him to be only an ignorant prospector, the men offer to make an air trip to Garth's claim, although they refer to his samples of platinum-bearing ore as nearly "worthless." Lilith Ramill, product of the jazz age, plainly shows her contempt for Garth.

The girl stopped in the entrance to peer around the cubbyhole kitchen, her scarlet-smudged lips curled with disgust. Though soap-clean, everything in the place looked crude. The air was choky from the smell of cheap bacon.

Huxby sprang up to place the chair at the near end of the table. He lifted the boiling teapot from the stove and started to fill a tin cup with the black brew.

"Pardon our not waiting, Lilith," he apologized. "I did not wish to waken you with the refueling. Planned to do it while you breakfasted."

"Quite thoughtful of you, darling. But you need not think I'll drink this lye or eat any of these beastly messes. Not for me. You can have your steerage garbage. I'll keep to cabin fare."

She faced about and went back through the passage. Huxby stood hesitating. Mr. Ramill motioned him to sit down.

"You stocked the cabin with enough wines and delicatessen to last several days. Finish your meal."

The mining engineer shot a glance at Garth. "I've had enough oats to founder a Scotch cow. May as well see to the refueling."

Tobin rose stiffly and followed Huxby into the storeroom. Mr. Ramill took a last sip of the boiled tea, favored Garth with a patronizing smile, and opened his gold-mounted cigar case to offer one of the choice Havanas.

Garth declined. "I never smoke. It deadens the nose."

"Deadens—What's that?"
"Though man has the sense of smell, compared with dogs he lacks the ability to scent. Yet even a trace of it may be of use in the bush."

The investor's portly body quivered to his chuckle. "I've heard of nosing out prospects! First time, though, it's been done to my knowledge." He caught himself up. "At least, Mr. Huxby considers it possible your discovery may be worth an examination. That leaves only the question of terms, in case we find the mine promising enough for me to make an offer."

Garth spared an inquiring glance. The portly gentleman gave him a bland smile.

"I believe in encouraging prospectors. They find new districts. With that in view, I buy numbers of undeveloped prospects, taking the risk of heavy losses. Though I drop thousands on some mines, I have made a fortune from others. But the average prospector, like yourself, stakes his all. Ninety-nine times in a hundred, he is cleaned out by total failure. If your lode looks at all possible, I'll pay you up to a thousand dollars cash for it."

"I'm not selling," Garth said. "I like to play a game through to the end, win or lose."

The investor's eyes hardened. "What's your idea?"

"One year's lease, and sixty per cent of the gross returns to me."

Mr. Ramill blinked. "Sixty per cent of gross! You're crazy!"

"Like a fox. Same kind of nose."

It was Garth's turn to smile. "Not so keen, though, for galena. Better for scenting out alloys of gold, iridium and—platinum."

The last word knocked the benevolent encouragement of prospectors speechless. Yet, after a moment of blank staring, he managed a half-pitying look.

"Daft!" he muttered. "That must be it. These prospectors, alone in the wilds for months at a time! He raised his voice. "Too bad, young man. If you'd make it gold and silver, I might have been able to swallow the bait. But platinum! That's a bit too thick. Platinum is found in quantity only in Russia. Very little anywhere else. Only a minute quantity in North America."

He rose as if to go. Garth gave him a regretful look.

"Yes—too bad, sir. Now I'll have to go outside. I may even have to wait until the ice goes out next year before I can dupe a gull into taking that lease."

Mr. Ramill left the kitchen without seeming to heed this plaint. When Garth followed him into the storeroom, he was quieting some dispute between Huxby and Tobin. The visitors put on their headsets and walked down to the wharf.

Garth went into the bunkroom. Before long Tobin came to open the door a handbreadth. He chuckled.

"Uh—lad, you got your hook in their gills. Pilot's tinkering with the motor. Changed the oil, but no move to refuel. Ain't rushin' to flop off."

Garth kept on lathering his beard.

When he came out, his cartridge belt was buckled about his waist. It held his sheath-knife and belt-ax. In one hand he carried his rifle, in the other the rest of his small outfit, strapped on his pack board.

Down on the wharf Mr. Ramill puffed cigar smoke through his headset while he watched Huxby's examination of the motor and propeller. Miss Ramill was not in sight.

"Right-o, Tobin," said Garth. "Shaming it is. When that bus came down, you never heard a sweeter motor—every cylinder hitting true. Wish I felt as sure of that southbound Belanca."

"Don't fash yourself, Mr. Garth. She'll make Fort Smith on schedule."

"Then here goes for my next play."

He went down the slope to lay his pack and rifle a little way out from the base of the wharf. After that he fetched his canoe from the bank. He swung it down into the shallow water within close reach of the pack.

Mr. Ramill came shoreward rather hurriedly for so dignified a gentleman. "One moment, Garth. I've consulted with my engineer partner. He still thinks it may be worth our while to investigate your prospect."

"What! In view of my terms?"

"They're outrageous! Still, it is just possible the—er—mine might justify them. The least we can do is to inspect the lode. I make no deals sight unseen."

Garth spoke as if to himself: "An air ride, free, and only a few hours' delay. Time enough to make the trip out before the freeze-up."

He lifted his pack up again on the wharf, and swung the canoe over his head to take it back to its previous position, bottom up, on the bank. When he returned he carried his pack and rifle out to the airplane. From the cabin came the rhythmic dissonance of a jazz-dance tune. The plane evidently was equipped with a long-distance radio receiver.

Through the wire gauze of the big rear window he saw Miss Ramill reclining on the heaped pillows of an unmade berth. The shelf at her elbow held tinned and package foods and a wine bottle. Garth laid down his rifle and pack on the wharf near the door-steps.

Ashore, at the storeroom, he found Huxby trying to boss Tobin into helping tote the gasoline. Annoyed by the old man's refusal, and still more by the indignity of mechanic's labor, the pilot engineer took up a case of twin five-gallon gasoline tins in his arms and started cautiously down the slope to the wharf.

Had Garth taken the same load, either he or Huxby would have had to return for the other two cases. He roped three cases together and tipped the thirty-gallon load upon his back. As if the pack had been a feather-weight, he went down the stony slope with the smooth gliding step of a moccasin wearer.

Out at the end of the wharf, a deaf stoop and twist lowered his heavy pack upon the planks without a jar. As he straightened up he saw Miss Ramill step down from the cabin. She had donned her leather pilot trousers and jacket but held the helmet in her hand.

Through the mesh of her headset he saw that her eyes were lustrous from wine. They gazed out at him with a look of reluctant admiration. No man of her acquaintance had ever toted such a back-breaking pack, either lightly or at all. But her forced respect gave place to a show of disdain when he ventured a friendly smile.

"How gallant!" she jeered. "He has sacrificed his whiskers. Can it be he hopes to enervate the fair sex?"

"Was that why I shaved?" Garth inquired. "Feminine intuition is wonderful. I thought I did it to make doping easier."

"Oh, you mean what they call fly dope. But I see none of the sticky or smelly mess they tell about. Your face looks clean."

"Thanks for the compliment. But I'll soon have to take to the usual grease and spruce pitch. Just used the last of my frogite."

The girl flushed with resentment. "Frogite! Don't lie to me. I know how you westerners tell fantastic falsehoods to tenderfeet."

"You do? By the way, in the North we say cheebahcos, not tenderfeet. As for the frogite, it's no fancy. Years ago, Seton remarked the fact that mosquitoes never sting frogs. I—er—I know a man who experimented and who finally obtained chemically the substance exuded by the skin of frogs. Too bad I've run out of the dope. There are plenty of pests where we are going. You'll have to keep behind your nets—or take to grease and pitch."

Before the girl could reply, Huxby called down for more gasoline. He had managed to get one tin of his case up to the cockpit and had emptied it into a wing tank.

Garth swung up to him with a whole case balanced on his shoulder. It was far easier than toting a deer over broken country. After hoisting aboard the other cases and Huxby's second tin, he ducked under the front strut of the wing. His rifle and pack lay where he had left them.

The radio had been tuned in on what probably was the Edmonton relay of the London metal market report. The announcer started to give the last quoted price on platinum: "Refined platinum, per troy ounce, twelve pounds, seven shillings and—"

A whine and shriek like static cut across the voice. The loud-speaker blared into jazz.

Splashes told that Huxby was tossing the empty cans and cases into the river, instead of down on the wharf. That small yet wanton waste proved that the mining engineer was a stranger in the North.

Garth stooped forward under the wing strut with his rifle. Miss Ramill stood with her very artificially waved semi-bobbed hair bared to the breeze. Upon taking off her mosquito net to put on the leather flying helmet, a swarm of insects had at once attacked her. She was trying to flit them off in order to replace the protecting gauze.

"D—n your North country!" she exploded.

"Wait till you reach one of our muskeg swamps, Miss Ramill. You'll call this heaven. But why the flying suit? Going to pilot the bus?"

"Is that any of your business?"

"None whatever. Pardon my impertinent curiosity. Only, as there are not three seats in the cockpit, I was moved to wonder if you, instead of your fiancée, are to be my riding mate."

"Yours!"

"How else? Or does the gentleman imagine he can find my prospect without a guide?"

"Dad will make you give Vivian your route map. I'll not let you have my seat."

This time Garth did not smile. The girl was due for a lesson. "Suit yourself—and tell Huxby he can head for the North pole."

"Indeed!"

"Quite so. He and your father can go there, or to the other place—and you with them. You're not only a selfish snob. You're a brainless fool to fancy a southern pilot can back-trail a canoe-route through unmapped forest and muskeg country."

The girl's blue eyes flared with outraged pride and vanity. Garth smiled. He had paid her back in full for her arrogance. It was worth waiting over until another season for his fortune, up in that hidden valley of the Rockies.

But before he could stoop under the strut to recover his pack from the cabin, the girl called out to him: "Wait. I did not understand. If it's really necessary for you to act as Vivian's guide—But you had no call to be so rude."

Though he turned back, it was with no intention of humbling himself. He was not duped by her seeming change to amiability. It had been too sudden for sincerity.

"A woman has no more right to be rude than has a man," he replied. "When I hear you apologize, I'll consider whether an apology is due from me."

The smile left her rouge-smudged lips. He had never before seen so disagreeable a look on any woman's face. But before she could find words to vent her feelings, Huxby peered down over the side of the cockpit, flushed from exertion and annoyance.

"Don't be all day, Garth. Cast off the lines.—Sorry, Lilith, that I'm not to have your company."

"Don't worry, old dear," she said. "This woody pest will soon be a thing of the past. Only a few hours of the affliction, and we'll be rid of him."

CHAPTER II

Treachery.

Garth followed Miss Ramill in under the monoplane's wing. He did not offer to hand the girl up into the cabin or help ship the steps. Women's rights did not include courtesies in return for insults.

He cast off the tail mooring line and swung aboard, with the coiled rope and his rifle. As the plane drifted clear, the breeze swerved it head off from shore. Huxby paused a moment to jerk out a question: "Route?"

For answer, Garth pointed westerly. Huxby set the propeller whirling with the self-starter. With rapidly increasing headway, the plane skimmed out on the smooth river.

Rifle between knees, Garth settled down upon the cockpit seat at the pilot's elbow. Huxby was first to speak. When the plane soared above the west bank of the great river, he leaned close to shout a repetition of his question: "Route?"

Garth looked overside before pointing. The plane had climbed nearly a thousand feet.

Even to a man who had spent years in the North, this view of the subarctic landscape was a puzzling maze. On the ground, Garth would have had slight trouble retracing the course he had followed in and out of the wilderness. From the air, everything looked different. For all his flying experience, Garth could not, as he had expected, strike a beeline. Though he knew the general direction of his find, he was unable to guide the plane as the crow flies.

At his sign to bank, Huxby frowned but brought the plane around in a wide curve. Very soon, upriver from the refueling station, Garth sighted the small swamp stream on which he had begun and ended his trip into the unknown. This was a familiar point of departure. From it he again directed the pilot to the westward.

Somewhat under an hour later, the swamps and low ridges ended at the upheave of an eastward thrust mountain range. A near view of the barren peaks caused Garth to twist the course about on a sharp angle to the southwest. Those mountains had not appeared any too familiar. The difficulty of finding landmarks recognizable from the air had not lessened. For days on his trip in and out, he had traveled through dense forests of spruce that shut off almost all wide views, even of the mountains.

The westward rise of the country had by now forced the plane up another thousand feet. Higher slopes ahead called for still more altitude. The jagged skyline reared a thousand feet or more higher than the plane. Huxby started to climb. Until within a mile of the savage cliffs he ignored Garth's advice to lessen the angle. Then, as the plane swept past an out-jutting peak on the right, Garth signed towards the gap between it and the main mass.

The highest point of the pass was more than half a thousand feet lower than the plane. Huxby pushed the stick forward and shot down for the gap on a long slant. The monoplane soon drove in between the towering precipices and steeply pitched side slopes of the immense cleft. A little more, and the cleft crooked to the north. The plane banked around the turn. Below the bend the cleft widened in the neve of a glacier. Farther down the expanse of snow-ice pinched into a narrow gulch. The gulch ran down into a deep mountain-rimmed valley. Down the rough bed tumbled a stream of milky glacier water.

Garth noted moving dots on the tundra and white specks up on the rocky slopes above them. But Huxby saw neither the caribou nor the mountain sheep. He had at once spotted the lake in the valley bottom. He angled on down as if to plunge into the silvery sparkling ripples of the lake. The monoplane swooped above the upper shore and drove on towards the foot of the lake at full speed. Garth pointed to the intake from the glacier stream, and signed for a descent.

Snail, a Mollusk, Belongs to Land, Water Variety

A snail is a mollusk and properly belongs only to mollusks living on land or in fresh water, which, says a writer in the Montreal Herald, are classified as Pulmonates because they have lungs (Latin, pulmo) and breathe air instead of extracting oxygen from water by means of gills as do the sea-mollusks. These pulmonates are of three kinds: 1, those living on land; 2, those living in fresh water; 3, slugs. Both of the first two are protected by shells to which they are permanently attached, yet may extend the body to some distance outside of them. The third kind (slugs) have no visible shell, only a small plate beneath the skin, and are wholly terrestrial. All these are virtually alike in internal structure, subsist mainly on vegetable food, are of two sexes, and reproduce by means of eggs.

As a snail, carrying its shell up-right on its back, crawls slowly along all we see of it is the squarish head at the forward end of a soft but muscular, tapering body called the "foot," the under surface of which is a tough, elastic sole by slight movement of which the animal hitches itself forward.

DIDN'T GET AROUND MUCH

In the course of an argument, a Canadian informed an Englishman that the inhabitants of the Old Country were too reserved. "Oh, nonsense," replied the Englishman. "Why, years ago, when I was in the Cambridge 'eight,' I knew all the other fellows quite well . . . that is, all excepting one . . . and he was away up in the bow."—Boston Evening Transcript.

SANTA CLAUS MAY BRING YOU NEW MOTOR CAR

Santa Claus this year, instead of his reindeer-drawn sleigh, will ride on rubber tires as he makes his Christmas calls, depending on the harnessed horsepower that is concealed under the sleek and shining hoods of the new 1936 model automobiles. Perhaps his most cherished and most appreciated gifts will be registration certificates to new automobiles which fit neatly into the Christmas stocking that hangs over the fireplace.

Which is only another way of saying that the motor car is going to play a more important part in Christmas sales activity this year than ever before, due to the fact that the models were brought out a full two months ahead of time.

"Taking cognizance of this fact, and the greater interest in new cars as the result of the early auto shows this season, Ford dealers all report that they have already received many orders for the new Ford for Christmas delivery," said A. J. Bertini, local Ford dealer. "We believe that more new automobiles will be sold for Christmas delivery this year than have heretofore been purchased during the whole month of December."

"The motor car, of course, the perfect Christmas gift because it brings happiness to the owners and to their whole families during the whole year. Formerly, with new models coming out in January, no wise investor would buy a last year's model and suffer the new model depreciation. Now all that is changed and our establishment has scores of prospects for the purchase of new Fords. Many fathers are also considering the purchase of Ford roadsters or coupes for their sons or daughters who are

CAR THEFT LAW CHANGE IS AIMED AT "JOY RIDERS"

In that common type of automobile theft where a car is "borrowed" without the owner's consent for a "joyride" the offender is now more certain to receive proper punishment as the result of an amendment to the law adopted at the last session of the Legislature and now in effect.

A member of the Legislative committee of a California motor association said:

"While the law still makes it a felony to drive or otherwise make off with an automobile without the owner's consent, an amendment adopted by the Legislature makes a change with regard to the penalty which permits courts to exercise greater discretionary power in imposing sentences. The purpose is to distinguish between the professional or criminal automobile thief and the 'joyrider' and to provide punishment in both types of cases."

"While retaining the former maximum penalty of five years in state prison, the amendment gives to the court the power to impose a county jail sentence from one day to a year, or a fine of 'not more than $5000.' The latitude given the court permits a judge to impose a jail term or fine, or both, as low or as high as he considers proper within the limits stated."

The law continues to provide that any person who assists in or is a party to the unlawful taking of an automobile is guilty of a felony.

in college. And here the Ford certainly has the edge on all other makes, because the youngsters certainly have a decided preference for the flashing acceleration and the smooth power of the Ford V-8 motor."

CARE IS NECESSARY IN NIGHT DRIVING

Night driving is exceedingly dangerous because too many operators drive beyond their lights. Many are the night accidents tersely described, "Failed to see pedestrian until too late." Because dusk and darkness reduced the operator's line of vision or headlight glare momentarily blinded him.

In cold figures, there were 459,510 accidents last year in which 15,050 persons were killed, in the normal daylight hours of 6 a. m. to 6 p. m. Contrast the record for the hours from 6 p. m. to 6 a. m. when the volume of traffic is generally only one-fifth as great as in daytime—422,490 accidents in which 20,950 persons were killed.

The rate of death per accident was 51.4 per cent worse during the hours of darkness than during the hours of daylight, while on the basis of traffic volume, it was several hundred per cent greater.

Drivers should drive cautiously in the hours of darkness. Pedestrians should beware when crossing streets or walking along highways in the night.

TELL IT TO JUDGE IF LICENSE MISSING

Motorists will have to explain it to a magistrate "right now" if they are stopped on the highway by an officer and cannot produce a driver's license.

Under the new vehicle code, all law enforcing agents are required to immediately take persons before the nearest magistrate in the county in which the offense occurs for the following infractions:

- (1) When a person fails to exhibit his operator's or chauffeur's license.
- (2) When a person arrested refuses to give his written promise to appear in court.
- (3) When a person arrested demands an immediate appearance before a magistrate.
- (4) When a person is charged with hit-and-run driving wherein fatalities or injuries are incurred.
- (5) When a person is charged with driving while intoxicated.

California Highway Patrol officers have been given instructions to check for driver's license at every opportunity on state roads.

You can help yourself and your home newspaper by patronizing your home merchants.

CUTTING IN HOLDS DANGER

Be sure you have enough clear distance to pass the other car.

With an increasing number of head-on collisions noted in accident reports, motorists are urged to make certain that they have sufficient clear space ahead when passing.

The importance of providing clear vision of the road ahead for as long a distance as possible is recognized by authorities on highway design and safety. Results of test measurements by the U. S. Bureau of Standards to determine what that distance should be for minimum safety requirements, are offered as evidence of the risk involved in passing without sufficient clear space ahead.

In all the test maneuvers the rear car, traveling at the same speed as the car ahead, started to accelerate from a position about one and a half seconds in time behind the car ahead. It was found by several hundred measurements that the time required to overtake and pass another car on a substantially level road, starting from a safe distance to the rear, is nearly six seconds and is independent of the speed.

Reduced to distances, it was found that for a car to overtake and pass another which is traveling at forty miles per hour, on roads where a speed of fifty miles may be expected, the driver intending to overtake must have at least 900 feet of clear road ahead if the maneuver is to be made with safety.

In overtaking a more slowly moving vehicle, such as a truck traveling at twenty miles per hour, the safe distance is 650 feet, made up of 600 feet for the overtaking vehicle plus fifty feet for a vehicle approaching at fifty miles per hour.

RESET SAGGY SPRINGS

Few defects show up so conspicuously in the automobile as springs that have sagged and grown misshapen with the passage of time.

If your car happens to have developed this defect, it may be interesting to know that having the springs reset is not a particularly expensive job. It will contribute considerably to improved riding comfort as well as better appearance. One resetting is about all a set of springs can stand, however. Replacement is in order after that.

LESSON SERMON OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

In all Christian Science churches, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., a Lesson-Sermon will be read Sunday, November 24, on the subject "Soul and Body."

The Golden Text will be: "The Lord is good unto them that wait for him, to the soul that seeketh him" (Lam. 3: 25). Bible selections will include the following passages from II Corinthians 5: 1, 6, 8: "For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. . . . Therefore we are always confident, knowing that, whilst we are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord. . . . We are confident, I say, and willing rather to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord."

A passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included which reads as follows: "Sorrow is turned into joy when the body is controlled by spiritual Life, Truth, and Love. Hence the hope of the promise Jesus bestows: 'He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; . . . because I go unto my Father,'—(because the Ego is absent from the body, and present with Truth and Love)" (p. 14).

DATES ARE SET FOR CAR REGISTRATION

Registration of automobiles for 1936 is to take place from January 1 to February 4, inclusive. Motorists must apply for registration prior to January 30, if they wish to avoid the 100 per cent penalty.

Certificates of registration must be stamped by the assessor to show clearance of personal property taxes. This requirement will be discontinued after the 1936 registration.

The new "in lieu" tax which removes automobiles from city and county tax rolls and substitutes a new State tax in addition to the $3 registration fee must be paid at the same

NEW MOTOR LAWS ADDED SAFETY AIM

California's motor vehicle code, for years looked upon as a model by the nation's traffic authorities, has been brought to still higher standards of efficiency by recent amendments. Many of the changes are for the purpose of providing increased safety on streets and highways and motorists should be careful to observe the law in their own interests.

"Individual responsibility for safe driving has been brought strongly to the fore by one group of vehicle code amendments, those dealing with drivers' licenses," Percy E. Towne said recently. "One of these changes has to do with increased requirements in the examination of prospective drivers. Another gives to the Department of Motor Vehicles the right to require re-examination of drivers at will. This, in turn, is supported by a provision for setting up individual records of drivers."

"Every driver will hereafter have filed against his record convictions of violations of the traffic laws and reports of any accidents in which he may be involved. The department will thus be able to keep close watch upon the safety record of individual drivers. This is expected to result in a constant weeding out of careless, reckless, and otherwise unsafe drivers by taking away the licenses of those who do not have the necessary physical and mental qualifications to drive, or who do not have a proper regard for the rules of safety."

"The department has also been given increased powers to suspend drivers' licenses for various offenses committed under the revised vehicle code."

"As a result of these changes, obeying traffic laws is not only necessary for personal safety but because the privilege of continuing to drive may be at stake."

Captain Carrasco Adds Punch In Fourth League Victory Over Old Rivals

(By Al Gould)

The Daly City Tanforan baseball team defeated the Bear Photo club of San Francisco by a narrow margin in the fifth league game of the Recreation AA schedule, Sunday afternoon, on the clubhouse diamond.

Lefty Feiber, while not as effective as he has been in the past, pitched remarkable ball until he retired from the game in the seventh inning for a pinch hitter. Lefty allowed only four safe hits and fanned eleven batters. Creight Davies, star right hander, was sent in to bat for Feiber in the seventh, and came through with a base hit that started the rally which put the home club on top. Davies fanned five of the eight batters who faced him in the two innings he pitched.

Captain Carrasco, who has been absent from the line up on account of illness, returned to the game Sunday and added the punch that was needed for victory, namely, his triple in the seventh inning with two on, which put the game on ice.

JEFFERSON INDIANS SUCCESSFUL SEASON

In closing the football season, the 1935 Jefferson Indians met the Commerce Bulldogs with a defeat of 6-0.

Our first encounter this year was with Balboa. The Jefferson team lost this game by a score of 14-0. The games with Lick and Mountain View were both tie score games, 6-6. Then our Indians brought four big victories. Santa Clara, 28-6; Menlo Park, 13-6; Santa Cruz, 13-6; and San Mateo, 16-2. We also won both second string games: Sequoia, 19-0 and Burlingame, 19-0.

The squad of 1935 consisted of the following boys:

Rose, Stansbury, Bolster, Pfeifer, Bontempi, Lee, Prongos, Verducci, Green, Burns, J. Wilson, Young, Telleria, Lowenthal, Guisti, Wilson, Flick, Silicani, Simpson, Van Pelt, Toloui, Biggio, Arista, Ragni, Smith, Corsiglia and Elder.

With fine spirit and the best of coaching by Coach Biggs and Coach Disbrow, also the willingness of our boys to "fight and win," our 1935 football team had a successful year and brought credit to our school.

Pleasure cars are numbered from 1A1 to 929999, excluding the series I, O and Q.

SAFEST CARS ON ROADS ARE FORDS

Safety for driver and passenger is an outstanding feature of the new Ford V-8 for 1936, on display this week at the San Francisco Automobile Show, according to A. J. Bertini, of the National Auto Company, local Ford dealers.

"One of the basic principles of Ford design," Mr. Bertini declared, "safety is even more pronounced in the new Ford model. Retaining all the safety features of the 1935 V-8s, better steering resulting from changes in the steering gear and front axle, makes the new car approximately 25 per cent easier to handle."

"Important as steering is as a safety factor, other features of the new car play a prominent part in making it exceptionally safe in city traffic or on the country road. Noisy driver whose nerves are on edge is by no means a safe driver. Changes this year in the transmission and a better type of insulation make the new V-8 an even more silent car than before. Gear shifting now is virtually noiseless—noises from the road are reduced to minimum."

"There are many other reasons why the Ford has won the reputation of being a safe automobile, both for driver and passenger. Here are a few of the more obvious safety features of the 1936 models."

"Ford bodies are all-steel bodies, welded into a one-piece construction and reinforced with steel; wood for structural purposes is eliminated entirely. All Ford cars have safety glass in all windows and windshields, solid front axles, positive mechanical brakes, rugged drawn-steel wheels and a great reserve of power in the brilliantly performing V-8 engine."

"Those are highlights of a long array of features that are responsible for the Ford being among the safest cars on the road."

GOING GOOD!

The Daly City Ramblers came out in front again last Sunday by defeating the Pirates A. C. at Portola; the score being 12 to 6. The game was a slug-fest. Slater hit a home run in the first inning with a man on, and the victors got, altogether 5 runs with 5 hits in the initial inning. Leggett pitched for the Ramblers.

MOVIES IN DARK AFRICA

The movies have penetrated far into the heart of West Africa, the natives having a passion for films of super-fervid melodrama, wild west exploits, murder, pillage and arson. Attempts have been made to infuse an element of moral uplift into their intellectual bill of fare and their conception of white humanity, but these efforts have met with a marked lack of appreciation.

IT WORKED FOR ME

Women should take only liquid laxatives

MORE people could feel fine, be fit and regular, if they would only follow the rule of doctors and hospitals in relieving constipation. Never take any laxative that is harsh in action. Or one, the dose of which can't be exactly measured. Doctors know the danger if this rule is violated. They use liquid laxatives, and keep reducing the dose until the bowels need no help at all. Reduced dosage is the secret of aiding Nature in restoring regularity. You must use a little less laxative each time, and that's why it should be a liquid like Syrup Pepsin. Ask your druggist for a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if it doesn't give you absolute relief, if it isn't a joy and comfort in the way it overcomes biliousness due to constipation, your money back.

Dreamers of Truth

The dreamers of the world are the men from whom the greatest truth comes.

Beware Coughs from common colds That Hang On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with anything less than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble to aid nature to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened and expelled. Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, your druggist is authorized to guarantee Creomulsion and to refund your money if you are not satisfied with results from the very first bottle. Get Creomulsion right now. (Adv.)

GREAT ROMANCE IS PORTRAYED IN "DIAMOND JIM"

Had Everything But Love—Millions Galore But Not Happiness

"You can't have everything!" Never before was the truth of this aphorism so apparent as it is with the screening of the thrilling colorful story of "Diamond Jim," a Universal production dealing with the life of the gay nineties and starring Edward Arnold in the title role coming to the Daly City Theater, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, November 24, 25 and 26. "Diamond Jim," in reality the life story of James Buchanan Brady, a true-to-life character who lived from 1856 until 1917—a super-salesman of railroad equipment—financier—tycoon of another generation—reveals, in its entirety that there is almost without exception a "fly in the ointment" of life.

"Diamond Jim" had everything—except love.

He had the ability to make millions upon millions of dollars, to dazzle, to sell his products—but he couldn't sell himself to the only two women he ever loved and, in the evening of his life, he was alone!

His first romance was with a southern girl, played in "Diamond Jim" by Jean Arthur. Her family, considering him a diamond too much in the rough, wowed her affections from him, and he found himself heart hungry. He told the girl, as the picture reveals, that he would never love anyone else.

This was, in a sense, true. He did fall in love again, but only because the second girl looked enough like the first to be her twin. It was an odd and sincere devotion. "Diamond Jim" bedecked with jewels worth $175,000, making and losing fortunes, giving Lillian Russell, portrayed by Binnie Barnes, gold-plated and diamond-studded bicycles, owning racing stables, buying "country gentleman" farms, spending $100,000 on single parties.

Added attraction is "The Streamline Express," with Victor Jory and Evelyn Venable.

Ovenserve — Wednesday.

Bank Night and Burt's Shoe Night — Saturday.

THANKSGIVING LESSON-SERMON

"Thanksgiving" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Thanksgiving Day, November 28, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The Golden Text will be: "Offer unto God thanksgiving; and pay thy vows unto the most High" (Ps. 50: 14).

Other Bible citations will include: "Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and today, and for ever . . . By him therefore let us offer the sacrifice of praise to God continually, that is, the fruit of our lips giving thanks to his name. But to do good and to communicate forget not: for with such sacrifices God is well pleased" (Heb. 13: 8, 15, 16).

The Lesson-Sermon also will include the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "While the heart is far from divine Truth and Love, we cannot conceal the ingratitude of barren lives. What we most need is the prayer of fervent desire for growth in grace, expressed in patience, meekness, love, and good deeds. . . . Outward worship is not of itself sufficient to express loyal and heartfelt gratitude, since he has said: 'If ye love me, keep my commandments'" (pp. 3, 4).

SURPRISE STORK SHOWER HONORS

Miss Iola Johnson and Miss Marian Mansfelt of Liebig street entertained, Thursday evening of last week, at the latter's home, at a surprise stork shower in honor of Mrs. Myrtle Domencio of Mission circle.

REAL SPIRIT OF THANKSGIVING

Enter into His gates with thanksgiving, and into His courts with praise: and be thankful unto Him and bless His name. For the Lord is good; His mercy is everlasting; and His truth endureth to all generations. (Psalms 100, 4-5).

General Washington perfectly expressed the spirit of the day in his Thanksgiving Proclamation in 1789:

"Whereas it is the duty of all nations to acknowledge the providence of Almighty God, to obey his will, to be grateful for his benefits, and humbly to implore his protection, aid and favors . . . Now, therefore, I do recommend and assign Thursday, the 26th day of November next, to be devoted by the people of these States to the service of that great and glorious being, who is the Beneficent Author of all the good that was, that is, or that will be; that we may then all unite in rendering unto him our sincere and humble thanks for his kind care and protection of the people of this country, and for all the great and various favors which he has been pleased to confer upon us."

The first Thanksgiving proclamation was uttered by Governor Bradford in 1621. It was late in the fall. He had just sent four men into the forests to shoot wild birds. "We will hold a harvest feast of thanksgiving," he said. He invited the friendly Indians to join in this festival of the early Pilgrims.

Until the Civil War the celebration of the day was merely a state affair. During the Civil War it was suspended for a time, but in 1864 it was revived by President Lincoln, who proclaimed the fourth Thursday in November thereafter as a national Thanksgiving Day. When Lincoln was assassinated it almost caused this rule to pass out of existence, but it was revived again by succeeding presidents throughout the United States. The date is now regularly observed proclamation by the President is sent to the governors of the different states, each of whom issues a corresponding proclamation of his own.

AUTHOR BENNET EXAMINES LOCALE OF HIS NEW YARN

"Caught in the Wild" Appears Serially in This Newspaper.

Robert Ames Bennet believes in gathering authentic information about the country in which he lays the plots for his stories. He is shown exploring ice formations in the far north, which forms the background for his latest adventure story, "Caught in the Wild," which appears serially in this newspaper.

Bennet was born in Denver in 1870, when that city's population numbered only 5,000. With his family he traveled much of the West and before he was seven had seen two gold camp shootings. Although he attended public schools for a short time he is largely a self-educated man. After two years of law school he began the practice of law with his father and brother.

Since 1907 he has devoted all of his time to writing, having become a popular figure with lovers of good books and readers of magazines throughout the country because of the vibrant, exciting quality of his 30 or more novels.

"Caught in the Wild," hailed by many critics as his best, is the story of a prospector and three tenderfeet, two of them dangerous crooks and one a spoiled young woman, trapped in the north woods when their plane crashed. You'll find it one of the most exciting stories in years, if you follow it serially in the columns of this newspaper.

ALARM BOXES ARE FOR USE IN CASE OF FIRE

The attention of the residents of Daly City has often been called to the matter of turning in an alarm as soon as the fire is discovered. Yet a recent fire that the department was called out for had enveloped a story and half house and started a cottage next door before the alarm was turned in. Your fire department is drilled monthly by their captains and quarterly by their chiefs; they have the apparatus and know what to do in any emergency. Why not send for them as soon as the fire is discovered; then, if you wish, you can try to put the fire out.

At the fire mentioned the occupants tried to put out the fire with buckets, until it finally drove them out of the house, and then turned in an alarm. A great deal of the loss could have been averted if the fire department had been called at once.

PUBLIC SPEAKING STUDENT ENTERED ORATORY CONTEST

Alice Fitzpatrick represented Jefferson at the State Teacher's College last Saturday in the oratory contest sponsored by the State. Alice spoke on "The Present Economic Crisis" and, although she did not enter the finals, she made a very favorable impression of the judges.

Mr. Saiz and Alice spent the entire day there and enjoyed many speeches given by students from numerous schools.

STORK SHOWER FOR POPULAR MATRON

Last week we inadvertently printed a head over an item referring to a stork shower for Mrs. Dorothea Brush. It seems that two lines of separate heads became transposed, thus causing the confusion.

It should be plain to anyone that a "stork shower for bride to be" is a palpable error. It should have read "Stork Shower for Popular Matron." The young woman mentioned has been married for some time.

Thanksgiving Service On Thursday Morning

Grace Presbyterian Church, corner of Hanover and Evergreen, will observe a Thanksgiving Service on Thanksgiving morning at 10 o'clock. The service will last just one hour and during that time the Proclamation of the President will be read. The choir will sing, "I Will Extoll Thee, O Lord, My King." Everyone is welcome at this service.

COLMA GIRL IS WED IN CHURCH

The bride wore a two piece rust colored dress and a hat of matching color. Her corsage was of orchids and lilies of the valley.

The bridesmaid, Miss Helen Rauh, wore a two piece green dress and a hat of matching color. Her corsage was of orchids and lilies of the valley.

Joseph Schouts acted as best man. Relatives and the bridal party enjoyed a wedding dinner at Topsy's Roost.

After a honeymoon, spent in Yosemite, the young couple will make their home on Eighteenth street in San Francisco.

"Whereas, said stocks of fireworks will be rendered absolutely valueless in the event that your Honorable Board enacts the contemplated ordinance thereby entailing severe losses to the merchants by reason of the fact that it will then be impossible for them to dispose of the stocks on hand, and

"Whereas, the enactment of said ordinance would merely divert the moneys annually expended for fireworks in our city, to communities other than our own, which other communities would thereby profit in direct proportion to the loss sustained by our own community, and

"Whereas, experience demonstrates that the prohibition of the sale of fireworks within the confines of a given community does not in any wise prevent the general use of fireworks by the citizens of said community so long as fireworks are readily procurable in nearby communities, as would be the case in the event of the enactment of the contemplated ordinance,

"Now, therefore, we the undersigned, merchants and taxpayers of the City of Daly City, State of California, hereby petition your Honorable Board to refrain from enacting any ordinance which will prohibit the sale of fireworks within our city, or which will place unnecessary or unreasonable restrictions upon the sale of the same, to the end that our merchants and the community in general may continue to receive the benefits heretofore derived from such sale.

This resolution was signed by 47 merchants doing business in this city.

LONG DISTANCE brings the family close..

HOME and "the folks" are right there at the other end of a telephone wire. Why not call them up this Thanksgiving? It will give them happiness to feel your presence so close. Your voice will come as clear and individual as if you were sitting there before them across the table.

Frequent use of "Long Distance" is a wonderful way of maintaining family ties. The cost is low.
